

The growth in the 1990s was a dramatic change from all previous development in the County. Scattered residential communities began appearing in many parts of the County, with isolated homes also appearing throughout rural areas. It is this rampant rural growth that has impacted the character of the County more than any other influence in the past decade.

Historical Growth by Decade